

Press release about Niño

Niño alias Benno Ernst is a Swiss musician who has been celebrating the simplicity of the interplay of guitar and voice with his songs since the early 1990s.

Niño is Benno Ernst's dearest and most authentic project. The songs are as unique as possible; As with all of his albums, all songs are original compositions and almost all instruments are recorded by himself in his home studio. This gives his songs and albums an authenticity that one rarely hears these days. If the artist you hear on the radio or on stage is often an interpreter, Niño strives for the greatest possible originality, from the creation of the song to the live performance. Each of his albums has an arc of tension and a common thread.

As Niño, Benno Ernst is inspired by various styles. "If the quality is right, every style is interesting. You can be inspired by every sound you hear, even if you don't like it. Music is about the same to the taste of the individual as it is to commercial success: if you're lucky, you touch a nerve.